Sierra Club To Clash With NPPD In Hearing

By BOB GUENTHER Star Staff Writer

Thunderheads are brewing in anticipation of Thursday's public showdown between the Sierra Club and the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) over licensing of the Gerald Gentleman Power Station near Sutherland.

Legal observers are betting the dispute will boil over into a court battle with potential national implications, regardless of whether the state Department of Environmental Control (DEC) sanctions the operation of the 650-megawatt plant.

Already, the combatants are gathering: the Platte Valley Sierra Club has drawn on its national organization for help.

A March 3 meeting involving lawyers for both sides was called by the DEC to consolidate the issues to be argued and thus expedite a decision.

Far Apart As Ever That meeting failed, and both sides are as far apart as they ever were, a DEC official said.

The DEC is now expecting the hearing will take two days to complete instead of one and accordingly has reserved the Nebraska Supreme Court hearing room, perhaps an ironic location, for March 21 and 22.

Thus far, the Sierra Club has won in its initial legal manuevering over the protests of NPPD attorney Robert Crosby

The DEC agreed to select a new hearing officer after the Sierra Club objected to the naming of Richard Hansen, the DEC's attorney, as hearing officer. The Sierra Club successfully argued that a conflict of interest could occur if Hansen is the hearing officer.

After the testimony is heard, the hearing examiner will make a recommendation to DEC Director James L. Higgins, who will have the final say on issurance of the license to operate.

Four Issues

H. Anthony Ruckel, a Denver attorney on the staff of the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund, has been adamant in maintaining there are four issues for the DEC to decide before the application can be granted:

-Will the plant violate new source emission standards for particulates (fly ash) and sulfur

-Will the plant violate legal requirements protecting clean air areas from significant deterioration of air quality?

-Can additional abatement measures be taken to protect clean air regions?

Ruckel said the answer to all four questions is an unqualified

But Crosby in a written reply stated the only issue for the DEC to decide is whether the plant will violate new source standards for particulates and sulfur

The manufacturer of the plant's particulate controls claims the Gentleman Station will be cleanest fossil fuel plant of its type in the world. NPPD said its controls will remove 99.8% of all particulates and easily meet the DEC's new source standards.

Don't Believe It

In a telephone interview, Ruckel said, "We flatly don't subscribe to NPPD's contention that it will be the cleanest plant in the world.

Dr. Michael Williams, an engineer for the Sierra Club from Santa Fe, N.M., disputed NPPD's data in a written statement indicating that actual particulate emissions will probably be at least 6.5 times greater than NPPD is saying.

Williams said NPPD is not using the best available technology to clean its emissions.

By adding a "scrubber," Williams said, sulfur oxide emission levels could be reduced to a fraction of the 56 tons per day the plant as now designed will produce, as well as raising the efficiency of particulate removal

Nitrogen oxide emissions could also be reduced if the boilers were designed differently, Williams said.

Ruckel said he could not estimate off-hand how much of an additional investment would be needed to bring the Gentleman plant up to Sierra Club specifications. Several firms, both domestic and foreign, make scrubbers at a competitive price, Ruckel said. Overall, the cost of the equipment should not be exceed 10% of the total $174 million investment, he said.

Embargo Not Lifted . Oil Chiefs To Meet Again

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The oil minsters from nine Arab countries failed to agree Sunday on lifting the oil embargo against the United States and decided to meet again on Monday. The Arab ministers met after they and four other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), the world's largest oil producing nations, decided to extend their freeze on oil prices for three months.

A Saudi Arabian official had said earlier Sunday that the freeze cleared the way for a lifting of the embargo, but after the Arab ministers met on their own it became apparent there still were disagreements on the embargo.

Informed sources said some of the ministers. particulary the Syrians, wanted to confer with their governments before proceeding further. The sources said leaders of the Arab countries are expected to be in contact with one another before the Monday session to settle some differences.

The ministers, representing members of the Organization of Arab Oil Producing Countries (OAPEC), met for 31/2 hours at a Vienna hotel, most of the time without their aides present.

Sources said Libya, a strong opponent of ending the boycott, displayed little opposition during the session, and at times was forced to defend itself against reports that Libyan oil has been reaching the United States through third nations.

Egypt and Saudi Arabia, the leading Arab oil producer, were reported pushing for an end to the boycott that was imposed against the United States and the Netherlands last October because of the two countries' policy toward Israel.

Algeria has been reported in favor of lifting the embargo for two months pending the outcome of negotiations on a Middle East peace settlement. The United States is playing a key role on troop disengagement negotiations on the Israeli-Syrian

Syria was believed one of the strongest opponents of lifting the embargo, seeking to have a troop disengagement pact signed with Israel before

The decision by the 13-member OPEC to continue the freeze on petroleum prices was described by a spokesman as a good will gesture toward the leading oil consumers — Western Europe, Japan and the United States. But he warned that prices would again be raised if the industrial nations do

The president of the two-day OPEC conference which ended here Sunday, Finance Minister Jamshid Amouzegar of Iran, complained that inflation in the industrialized countries was an average 12 per cent last year.

'This would justify increasing the price of oil to the tune of at least 12 per cent to compensate for inflation," he told newsmen.

We have decided to show good will not to increase the price of oil for another three months provided the industrialized countries would contain their galloping inflation," he added.

"If they don't, then I think in another three months there will be an increase in the price of oil," Amouzegar declared.

OPEC imposed a price freeze at a meeting in BANKER'S BROTHER . . . talks with authorities.

Geneva, Switzerland, in January. The freeze was due to end April 1. The purpose of the OPEC meeting in Vienna this weekend was to decide whether or not to lift the freeze and either raise or But the organization came up with what appeared to be a compromise solution. Some nations, such as Saudi Arabia, wanted prices lowered, while others wanted them increased. Oil prices have tripled since October and quadrupled since Jan. 1, 1973.

The OPEC decision means the prices of petroleum products around the world will remain as they are now. The posted price, which exporting countries use to calculate taxes and royalties paid to them by oil companies, is $11.65 a barrel. But the actual price averages around $7.

In the United States, gasoline prices are expected to remain roughly at what they are now. Under the regulations of the Federal Energy Office in Washington, oil companies adjust their wholesale gasoline prices once a month depending on the price of crude oil.

Another factor in the decision, experts said, was the recent dampening in market prices of oil, a signal that the oil producers could not go on charging more without limit.

In recent open-market auctions in the Persian Gulf, all the bids were below the posted price and the prospective sales were cancelled.

Family's Third Son Stricken By Cancer

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) - Stephen Sutherland was a big comfort to his parents when his two younger brothers had cancer. "He helped us get through all the crisis times," says his father, Raymond Sutherland

Now the Sutherlands have learned that Stephen, 13, is suffering from bone

Tragedy struck the Sutherlands five years ago when their son Jeffrey, 4, died of lymphatic leukemia after an 18-month battle against the diease.

The day before his death, doctors diagnosed a malignant schwanonma, one of the rarest forms of cancer, in the nerve lining of Michael Sutherland, now 9. Michael underwent two operations, radiation treatment and lengthy therapy for paralysis in his left arm. He has suffered no recurrence.

'We went for two years and things looked bright, real good for everybody," Sutherland, a deputy with the Dade County Department of Public Safety, said in a weekend interview. "Then this hit us like a ton of lead.'

Sutherland, 35, and his wife Sara, 34, learned a month ago that their third son, a straight-A student, had contracted bone

"When they told me he had cancer, it just seemed unreal," Sutherland said. 'All of them were perfect children. But Steve's something special. He helped us

"Anytime you would ask, he'd say, 'Dad, I'll take care of that.' " He took care of Mike during Jeffie's illness. He was always stable with a lot of common

Doctors gave Stephen a 30 per cent chance for recovery. His father burst into tears when the boy asked him, "Dad, will they bury me in braces?"

"I broke down," Sutherland said. "I told him we're not going to worry about

Doctors have told Sutherland that they know of no other recorded cases in which three children in one family have been stricken by three different forms of

"This is the first time that this particular group of cancers has occurred in the same family in the United States," said Dr. Alvin Mauer of Memphis, Tenn., who treated Michael.

Stephen is undergoing examination at the Children's Research Center in Cincinnati, where doctors are trying to decide whether to amputate his leg or try to treat it with radiation therapy. The results of tests won't be known for several days, Sutherland said.

The family still has hope. "If we have hope we have everything going for us, Sutherland said. "One thing we can't do is run away from it. Where are you going

Minnesota Banker Waits For Word About His Wife

Lino Lakes, Minn. (UPI) - A distraught and exhausted bank president waited Sunday for further instructions from presumed kidnapers of his blonde wife.

Labor's Main Goal By DON WALTON Star Staff Writer

Organized labor's priority legislative goal, a bill repealing the state's prohibition against agency shop labor contracts, has died a quiet death in the 1974 Unicameral.

Time has expired on a motion to revive the measure from its Labor Committee graveyard.

"I just didn't have the 25 votes," Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, sponsor of LB770, pointed out.

"I knew I didn't have the votes, and as pressed as the Legislature is for time now, I decided to let it ride for this ses-

"It would have used up half a day in debate, and there was no use in making a run at something that was impossible.

The bill was killed in committee on a 6-1 vote, prompting Lewis to file a motion to attempt to bring the proposal to the floor for debate. At least 25 votes would then be required to revive the measure.

Contacted by telephone in Omaha, State AFL-CIO President William Brennan agreed with Lewis' assessment that the votes were not there.

"He's probably correct," Brennan said. But repeal of the agency shop ban will remain a goal of the AFL-CIO, he said. "We will try again," Brennan sought from the 1975 Unicameral will partially "depend on the makeup of the Legislature" next year, he said.

LB770 was a hot potato in an election year in which Democratic Gov. J. James Exon and 14 incumbent members of the Legislature are seeking reelection.

Other state senators are seeking election this year to such offices as governor, lieutenant governor and Congress.

Business and industry organizations, including chambers of commerce, have been adamantly opposed to LB770, and could be expected to raise the issue in the 1974 elections if candidates were forced expected to politically benefit him in the Democratic primary election, when the large Democratic labor vote in Omaha carries its greatest weight. Agency shop contracts provide

Arab Oil Ministers Postpone Action On Embargo

Vienna — Arab oil ministers postponed again Sunday the expected lifting of the oil embargo against the United States and scheduled another meeting Monday. Pravda Ridicules Kissinger

Moscow - The Soviet Union's Communist Party newspaper Pravda ridiculed the Middle East diplomacy of Secretary of State Henry A. Pravda

Campaign Atmosphere Detected

Washington - President Nixon's public appearances about the country are taking on the flavor and scope of national political campaign. He has stepped up the number and variety of public contacts as he seeks to show himself as a President firmly in control of his job and unperturbed by impeachment proceedings. Some of his visits, as in Nashville Saturday night, have all the trappings of a campaign appearance shortly before an election - crowds, banners, bands, advance men, controversy and crowd-pleasing oratory.

Impeachment Probe Defended

Washington - A House Republican leader has defended the Judiciary Committee's handling of the impeachment inquiry, asserting that the panel is acting with restraint and care. Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference, said the White House should turn over all evidence requested by the committee and that continued refusal to do so could become "the basis for a charge relating to impeachment." Anderson made his remarks on the "Meet the Press" television program.

Tensions Overshadow Feast Day

SLA Leaders Thought Women

San Francisco - A group of militant women are believed to be leaders of the Symbionese Liberation Army, the professed kidnappers of Patricia Hearst. Although the Federal Bureau of Investigation has thus far refused to identify any of the women, it was learned from usually reliable sources that they come from the Berkeley area near San Francisco, that they have been involved with inmates at various California prisons and that they were associates of Jack Remiro and Russell Little. Remiro and Little have been charged with the murder of Dr. Marcus A. Foster, the Oakland, Calif., school superintendent whom the Symbionese say they killed. (Another story on Page 2).

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Guerrillas ambushed and killed a British soldier on patrol in Londonderry Sunday, and fired on guards at a U.S. Navy communications center outside the city in an abortive attempt to steal arms, authorities reported.

They said at least five gunmen were involved in the ambush on the motorized patrol in a Roman Catholic section of the city.

Earlier, four masked guerrillas drove into the communications center in a hijacked truck, tied up three guards and took another hostage. But authorities said the hostage escaped when other guards routed the gunmen, who abandoned the truck and fled on foot.

No injuries were reported at the center, which relays North Atlantic Treaty Organization messages to and from the United States, and has a guard of about 150 U.S. Navy personnel.

In Belfast, officials reported a hut next to a British army post was destroyed by fire during a St. Patrick's Day gathering.

Parades were held in Newry and in Londonderry, but unlike Dublin and many other parts of the world, St. Patrick's Day in Ulster was not a large-scale festive holiday.

"All I can say it's a very important decision," Sirica said. 'I'm not going to try and compare it with any other decision."

But inevitably it will be compared with his historic ruling of last Aug. 29 that forced President Nixon to submit the White House Watergate tape recordings to him for review — and eventually to the grand jury.

'It's been very interesting, a lot of work connected with it." the judge said. "It's been late night work, early morning hours, things like that. Like I did with the tapes decision.

Sirica long ago made it known he would remain as an active judge rather than becoming a senior judge with fewer cases or retiring.

In one of his last acts as chief judge, Sirica assigned himself the Watergate biggie: the trial of onetime administration officials H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John N. Mitchell Sirica's father, an immigrant from Italy at age 7, traveled from place to place in a string of losing businesses in Connecticut, Ohio, Florida, Louisiana, Virginia and finally Washington, on the eve of World War I when John Sirica was 14. John was graduated from George Washington University Law School here.

Until the committee decides what an impeachable offense is and draws up specific charges against President Nixon based on that definition, Harlow says, the investigation will wander aimlessly, creating the risk of a constitutional impasse.

Harlow, one of Nixon's top aides, said in an interview that the White House is not being recalcitrant or trying to hide anything by refusing to open White House files to the committee or to respond to its request for tapes of 42 presidential conversations.

Oil Monopolies Given Blame For Tension

MOSCOW (AP) - Pravda said Sunday that recent frictions between the United States and Western Europe were caused by the "fact that oil monopolies of the USA continue to make profits on the Middle East conflict.'

The Communist party newspaper explained its reasoning by saying that the oil companies had created the energy crisis with artificial fuel shortages, and that the energy crisis sparked the new tension between Western Europe and the United States. The newspaper also spoke of President Nixon's speech Friday in Chicago, in which he told the Atlantic allies that continued U.S. commitment to European security will depend on real cooperation in political and economic affairs.

"I believe any violation of the presidential oath to 'faithfully execute the office . . . and protect, preserve and defend the Constitution . . .' could be grounds for impeachment," Lake said.

Crimes Not Necessary

Documents Unclear The writings and speeches of delegates to the Constitutional Convention are unclear on the point. Lake said, so that even careful study of historical documents and records is not likely to provide clear insight into their precise intent.

'My feeling is that the Founding Fathers did not want to impose limits on future generations as to what consituted an impeachable offense. They were willing to let future generations decide what were grounds for impeachment.

"Generally speaking, it appears to me that the Founding Fathers, influenced by English thinking, saw impeachment as a remedy for gross abuses of power, great malfeasance in office, subversion of the Constitution, or great breaches of trust and confidence.' Sanger. At 9 o'clock sharp every > Impeachment charges have been submitted against only one President of the United States, Lake pointed out.

"In the impeachment of Andrew Johnson, there were relatively few charges brought before the Senate. And the facts were largely undisputed.

"In the present situtation," he continued, "there are allegations covering a wide range of issues, from the Vietnam war and ITT felt she needed more living to the Daniel Ellsberg and space. "If all the possible charges currently mentioned were put before the Senate for consideration," Lake said, "it would take years to sort out all the facts

Lake concluded that among the lessons to be learned from the current situation is that there may be a need to consider new ways to remove a President from office if the need arises.

Recall Election

"Perhaps a recall plebiscite is the answer," he said. "The Constitution could be ammended to provide for a national election to determine whether or not the people wish to continue under the leadership of a President whose trust and confidence is in dispute.

"In the final analysis," he said, "impeachment is a political trial, in the sense that the verdict reached is basically as expression of the people's will as reflected in the vote of their duly elected representatives.

"A plebiscite would provide a speedy, efficient means of determining the will of the people.

'The recall election might be triggered, by, say, a three-fifths vote of each house of the national legislature, and not subject to executive veto, in order to prevent turning the executive out on a vote of no confidence such as England utilizes.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

We are in the thick of it now — the annual hassle over coming to terms with the IRS on tax liability. There are those anxiously awaiting a refund, those sweating out an auditing appointment and those still waiting around for the April 15 deadline.

Any way you look at it and at whatever point in time you find yourself, it is a sobering experience. Even if you are looking for a refund, there is the haunting memory of what you still paid out to support Uncle Sam in the style to which he has become accustomed.

And while the deductions you are entitled to constitute soothing medicine, there is the reality that you have paid through the nose for them. Take the $750 you can deduct from your income, for instance, for every dependent.

While all of us would rather have the deduction than not, it is far from what you would call a money-making proposition. The $750 is hardly a drop in the bucket compared to the real cost of that deduction to the taxpayer. In these inflationary times, the $750 will hardly cover a child's fun and games, much less the hard items such as food, clothing and education.

It is nice at tax time, too, to take the interest on the home mortgage off your taxable income but it would have been a lot nicer never to have paid the interest in the first place. Unfortunately, we know of no money lenders who want to overlook the interest thing.

Maybe the whole thing is a cleverly devised opiate to make the things in life that are bad look good. Consider all those medical expenses you had through the year. They may have been a real drain on the family budget at the time but now they turn out to be a blessing of sorts.

Even getting old has its compensations, as you get a better break with both Uncle Sam and the state if you manage to make it past a certain age. Who says you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear?

There are taxpayers, of course, who carry things a little too far and they keep the tax courts humming. A Los Angeles doctor used as a deduction payments made to his children for answering the telephone at home.

The tax court's decision was a blow for plain old common sense. It said no dice to the doctor simply because children normally answer the telephone at home

Had the fellow won, all sorts of doors might have been opened up. There is hardly any end to the things for which you can pay the children if you want to and plenty of people would want to if they could deduct such an expense.

The doctor might well have tried something better than a telephone-answering service by the kids to lower his tax payments. The telephone in most families with teenagers practically belongs to them.

If anybody is entitled to a deduction for telephone costs, it would be the children, but then, they don't pay any taxes to begin with so a deduction wouldn't mean much to them. But next to wheels, the telephone is the biggest item in their

The payment of other taxes, disability losses, alimony and uninsured property losses are just a few other things that may be bitter pills along the way but are little nuggets of gold at income tax time. Even some of your reluctant charitable contributions are a lot more cheery looking now than when you made them.

It is often the kind of thing that makes you want to laugh and cry at the same time. The income tax ritual may be full of contradictions but its occurrence, unfortunately, is as clear and absolute as anything in your life.

Massachusetts refused to hook into the new program. In addition, the Bay State has declined to supply criminal background data to other federal agencies, notably the Small Business Administration. The commonwealth contends they have no right to or practical use for such information.

In reprisal, the federal government has filed suit against Massachusetts to force compliance, and it has also withheld funds for federally supported programs. But Massachusetts has held firm. Referring specifically to the expanded crime data program of the FBI, Gov. Francis W. Sargent said that it was "one of the biggest threats to our democratic system - the invasion of one's own privacy. We refuse (to join the system) - and we shall continue to do so."

Sargent reaffirmed his position by creating, last December,

WASHINGTON - Concern the Massachusetts Commission

Because of its mandate, the Massachusetts commission is keenly interested in the various protection-of-privacy bills now before Congress. Gov. Sargent, accompanied by members of the commission, appeared recently before the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, whose chairman is Sam J. Ervin Jr.

Ervin has sponsored legislation to create a federal-state board that would control the collection and dissemination of crime records. In support of the measure, he quoted Thomas Hobbes, the 17th Century English political philosopher: Freedom is political power divided into small fragments."

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley testified in behalf of an administration-backed bill that would give the Justice Department authority over crime data. In the interest of lawenforcement, Kelley said, "we have to have centralized con-

A Waste Of Money

"We're 80 years behind," said Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln last week, in referring to Nebraska's correctional reform lag.

Nevertheless, Simpson joined other Appropriations Committee members in recommending $100,000 to develop a state master plan for corrections rather than 1974-75 funding for a new medium-minimum security prison to replace the Men's Reformatory. Based on several years' study, both Gov. Exon and Legislature's Judiciary Committee had agreed that blueprint money for the medium-minimum facility should be provided this next fiscal year so that the project could get off the ground.

Should the full Legislature spurn that collective advice and opt instead for one more study, as the appropriations panel has suggested, senators next year can observe that Nebraska is 81 years

The public has been led to believe that the governor and the Legislature had come to terms on a correctional reform package which included program and facility priorities. The needs had been established and means to meet the needs had been

But that decision can be intelligently resolved now, without further study recommendations. It will likely be a matter of raw votes at any rate. Factions favoring location either in Lincoln or Omaha are not going to gain anything through delay, but the correctional reform effort certainly will lose.

Gov. Exon has decided to veto untimely or inappropriate expenditures passed by the Legislature because of the upcoming state revenue crunch cause by a reduction in the state income tax rate. Last week, "with regrets," he vetoed a bill which would have created a John G. Neihardt Center at Bancroft in memory of Nebraska's late poet laureate, and authorizing an appropriation of $200.-000 to construct the center. Untimely, the governor said, and considering the revenue picture, it just

The governor should get his veto pen poised again if a bill appropriating more money for penal reform study comes across his desk. A $500,000 appropriation for actual plans for the mediumminimum security prison the governor should sign and to hell with the revenue picture. Report Favors Ombudsman

A political science professor from California has completed two year's study of Nebraska's omthe federal agency which provided initial funding for the office.

Nebraska's ombudsman, or public counsel who handles citizen grievances against state government, is Murrell McNeil, a former tax commissioner, whoo took over the reins of the independent agency when it was created in 1971. Concludes Alan J. Wyner, a professor of political science at the University of California, Santa Barbara: "The ombudsman has done much more than merely survive the first two years. He has had a significant and positive impact on hundreds of Nebraskans whose complaints were resolved and whose inquiries were answered."

A survey by Wyner of state agency administrators last July showed that 84.6% felt that the ombudsman's office should become a permanent part of state government. In the same survey, 55.8% of the administrators said the ombudsman budsman and has reported favorable conclusions to had encouraged some improvements in state government administrative agencies and 10.9% said McNeil had encouraged significant im-

> Wyner's figures show that the ombudsman office has had a positive impact on administrators. And McNeil says that a tally of follow-up cards sent to citizens who have used the office show that a large majority are satisfied with the service given them. Perhaps the worst that can be said about the ombudsman's office is that not enough people are aware of its existence as yet.

come tax to its previous level. Why, there would be a tax revolt if we did that.

Baloney. Most people don't know what the state income tax rate is this year, or what it was last year, or what it was before that. Now 11%, it was once 15%, and there was no more commotion or revolution at the higher rate than there is now.

Senators are the ones who often lead and create tax revolts.

And it is the senators who don't want to extend the session for valid reasons and poor ones. It would cut into their campaign time before the May primary election; it would upset personal plans and cost them more money; it would be an added hardship in terms of fatigue for 48 guys and one the 49 senators to agree to conwoman who have been working tinue on beyond the 60-day limit very hard for 21/2 months, and getting only $400 a month for - and it's hard enough to get 40 their efforts.

> So you can't blame them if they're anxious to get it over

And yet, the fact is that they are not going to finish their work in the remaining 15 legislative days, and they are going to rush what they do accomplish, sometimes failing to take the time to do it right, sometimes accepting a partial, but swifter, answer to a problem, sometimes making mistakes.

We've got a lot more to do than we can ever accomplish," Speaker Dick Proud told his colleagues the other day as he was attempting to work out an agenda for the final push.

Later in the week, he told an ETV news panel show that he believes the Legislature should work without artificial time limits. But, no, he said, he wasn't going to try to extend the 1974 session.

So for 15 remaining legislative days, senators are going to dash pell-mell through the pile of bills awaiting floor decisions. All the major ones are still there; the easy decisions are the only ones which have been made.

And, in the end, the quality of the work product of the 1974 Legislature will be limited by the calendar, not hammered together by due deliberation and debate. While the Unicameral prides itself as a deliberative body, it is questionable whether deliberative bodies abide by time limits.

Next January, when the 1975 Legislature convenes, somebody could do the state a favor by moving immediately to remove the artificial 90-day time limit under which that session is expected to work.

Then, the Legislature could get down to business, do its work, and adjourn when its work is done - not when the calendar marks off its 90th work day.

Yeah, I know. Same to you

Early in February, the Greek wrote a personal letter to each member of the House of Representatives. He enclosed a confidential poll card and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. He has received a phenomenal 70.4% response.

Of those representatives who responded, 91 checked the box indicating they were "against" impeachment of the President. Sixty-four favored impeachment. Twenty-four "leaned toward" impeachment; 23 "leaned against." Seventy-five marked the "undecided" box.

In addition to the poll cards, Jimmy received personal letters from 28 representatives who explained they had not heard the Federal investigators have picked up reports that counterfeiters are licking their lips over the prospect of reproducing phony gas ration coupons.

Three counterfeiters in the New York area alone, according to the confidential reports, are anticipating a big business in counterfeit coupons.

One of the three firms originally selected by the federal government to print 1.1 billion gas rationing coupons lost six bins of securities three years ago to Mafia stock thieves. Ever since this horrendous heist, millions worth of spurious stocks, bonds and other securities have been appearing all over the world.

The company whose securities were raided, Jeffries Banknote of Los Angeles, has now lost the contract to print gas coupons. It's not that the government fears its coupons will be carted off by the bin load, for the company's security is tighter now. But the Jeffries presses can't handle the special coupon work.

For almost a month before his January 28 grudge fight with Muhammad Ali, former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier was haunted by a death threat from black militants.

His bodyguard was bolstered and special precautions were taken at ringside, all unknown to the sell-out Madison Square Garden crowd.

Wright discounted rumors that the Black Muslims, of which Ali is a member, have been behind the "Uncle Tom" talk. As for the death threat, Wright figured it came from "some lunatic fringe group" of blacks.

Death And Demagoguery

NEW YORK — The Senate of the United States has voted by 54-33 to restore the death penalty for a wide variety of federal crimes, and the House of Representatives undoubtedly will follow suit - both at the urging of Richard Nixon. This would be one of the most astonishing and tragic turnabouts in history, were it not for the likelihood that it is more nearly another example of supine politicians pandering to the basest passions of their con-

In 1935, 199 persons were executed in America. In 1950, 82 were put to death. By 1963 the number had fallen to 21. Since 1967, no execution has been carried out in this country. In 1971, nine states had abolished the death penalty by legislation. Others, like New York, had limited it to certain rare crimes. Elsewhere in the world, since 1922, 41 nations had abolished the death penalty. And in 1971, the supreme court of the most populous state, in one of the most brilliantly argued decisions of our time, made California the first state or nation to abolish capital punishment by judicial

In 1972, in a far more limited ruling, the Supreme Court of the United States held that the death penalty, as then administered, was unconstitutional - not in itself, but because, as Mr. Justice Stewart argued, it was "so wantonly and freakishly imposed." But that was the highwater mark of the American movement against the death penalty - and in fact seems to have turned that movement around.

公 公 公 Since then, 21 states have restored the death penalty by legislation that they believe satisfies the Supreme Court ruling. The voters of California overturned that state's supreme court decision and reinstated capital punishment. The highest courts of North Carolina and Delaware took judicial action to make death a mandatory sentence in certain cases

All told, as shown by a study prepared by the N.A.A.C.P. Legal defense and Educational Fund, 72 people now are on death row - 31 in North Carolina, 17 in Florida, eight in Georgia, five in Massachusetts, three in Texas, two in Montana, and one each in New Mexico, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Utah, Louisiana and Virginia.

What brought about the reversal? Crime rates are on the increase, including violent crimes, but not in a pattern that suggests the near-abolition of the death penalty had anything to do with the rise. Death-penalty states had rises as sharp as those without it, sometimes more so. ☆ ☆ ☆

Yet, all the same tired and deceiving arguments are being made by death penalty advocates like Senator McClellan of Arkansas - it deters murder, it protects society, it makes a rapist think twice. There is not a shred of statistical evidence to support any such claim, any more than there was five years ago, or ten. Capital punishment may be justified, by those who wish to do so, as sheer societal revenge; but those who maintain that it is a deterrent were shown up as the hypocrites they are by "repulsive" amendment proposed by Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa to the Senate deathpenalty bill.

Hughes, a bold and humane man, would have required all executions ordered under the Senate bill to be carried out publicly, even televised. He argued that if there is any deterrence in death, surely that would emphasize it. But one of the arguments of the California supreme court in 1971 had been that the modern public, not accustomed to hangings in the town square, and however it might theoretically approve capital punishment, would rebel against having actually to watch the death sentence being carried out. Sure enough, the Senate rejected the Hughes amendment, 811 to 10, exposing the deterrence argument for the sham it is. What, in fact, is happening is that politicians everywhere are selling out to the public's heightened fear of crime. Most of them are under no real illusion that capital punishment will actually prevent crime or protect the public. Given the absence of executions since 1967, and the likelihood of a new Supreme Court review of the matter. probably most of them do not really expect anyone to be killed by their legislation.

It can only be hoped that this blood-thirsty posturing is only

Poll: Majority Feels U.S. In Recession

By 68% to 22%, a sizable majority of the American people now believes the country is in a recession. Feeling that there is a recession is sharply up from the 54-32% who felt the same way in January and is the highest ever recorded by the Harris Survey in this decade.

Basically, the public reaches its conclusion about a recession by expressing the view that prices are now rising faster than ever before and unemployment is going up sharply.

Between March 3 and 7, 1,407 households were interviewed in person across the nation. People were asked?

"Do you feel the country is in a recession today or not?"

Part of the reason is that 91% of the people report the prices they now pay are "rising faster than a year ago."

Periodically, cross sections of the public have been asked by the Harris Survey:

I feel the communications barrier between humans and animals is very thin and is going to be shattered. Neptune in Sagittarius, among other things, will coincide with man's ability to comprehend the language of other species. I became more convinced of this recently while working on a radio documentary for a major network on the subject of "talking animals." I know that we can "talk" to dolphins and they do respond in an intelligent manner. There is a chimpanzee named "Lana" who can spell out the request, "I want a banana." Some Capricorns "talk" to cats, while many born under Leo and Sagittarius communicate with horses. Do you have an animal that "talks"?

It all started last year when the Nebraska legislature rescinded its ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

"One of the favors Sen. Proud (Richard of Omaha, who spearheaded the rescission movement) did for us was to make us realize we needed to coordinate our efforts and know much, much more where a woman stands as a citizen," observed Kappie Weber, chairperson of the Women' Communication Center (WCC)

So WCC is attempting to fill a void - of communication among women's organizations across the state, of coordination and cooperation of efforts of those organizations, of education of all Nebraska women on women's issues, of a centralized source of information for all women of the state.

Becoming reality just last November, WCC is still in the brainstorming stage. It's now just being organized — by representatives of at least 20 women's, organizations, either in support of passage of the ERA or women's issues such as abortion, availability of child care, child support.

The issue-oriented organizations - National Organization for Women (NOW), Women's Equity Action League (WEAL). League of Women Voters (LWV), Nebraska Women's Political Caucus, Women's Lobby - are all there.

Many Ways To Lose Weight

I would like to lose 10 pounds, and my husband would like to lose 20 pounds.

Do you recommend this method of losing weight? And son have to burn to lose one pound?

NO PUT ON DEAR NO: I'm advised that one must burn 3,500 calories to lose one pound of body fat. The number of calories burned per hour for several types of measured physicial activity reads as follows:

Slow walking - 115 to 200. Dancing - 275 to 350. Skating or swimming — 300 to Tennis - 350 to 700.

of profiles of Nebraska's 10 living First Ladies. The stories are written by students at the University of Nebraska's School of Journalism.

By IVY HARPER

When Mrs. Keith Neville became Nebraska's First Lady in 1917, the Governor's Mansion didn't have a piano or a washing machine or beds.

So she packed a train full of furniture and brought it from North Platte to Lin-

Mrs. Neville remembers fixing up the old mansion as the wife of the state's youngest governor ever. At 33, Keith Neville was nicknamed the "Boy Governor" by the Nebraska press.

Then, as today, at 91, Mrs. Neville says she is a "housekeeper and mother."

"I didn't have time to be too political because I had three little girls and a fourth was born while we were in the mansion," she said.

Most of her time was spent caring for her daughters and trying to make the mansion livable

Mrs. Neville said the money that was alloted for the upkeep of the mansion had to go for rewiring, so there wasn't any money for "pretty things.

She remembers spending hours sewing curtains for the large windows in the old

Even though it was scarcely furnished. Mrs. Neville said she "loved the old mansion. It was lovely.

During her husband's term, which ended in 1919, when he was ousted by a Republican, all the activities centered around World War I.

Mrs. Neville said the "times were depressing" but she loved her two years in Lincoln

The most depressing period, she said, was when a flu hit Lincoln in 1918, and "people were dropping like flies all over

She said her cook got the flu but there was no nurse to take care of her. So Mrs. Neville nursed her to health as she and Gov. Neville didn't get the flu.

Born Mary Virginia Neill, Mrs. Neville was reared in a family as nonpolitical as her husband's was political. Keith Neville's father was a U.S. Congressman and his grandfather was M. C. Keith, one of Nebraska's pioneers.

When her cousin introduced her to Neville at an Annapolis, Md., military ball, she said, "He impressed me quite well from the start.'

They remained friends for three years before deciding to get married.

"I was thrust into politics very suddenly when I married Mr. Neville," she said,

'but I loved it." Mrs. Neville came to North Platte, for the first time in 1908 as a blue-eyed, blonde Southern bride. She had only read about Nebraska in books. She loved the state immediately and said she considers this her home. She spent her girlhood days in Charles Town, W. Va., where she attended Stephenson Female Seminary. There she learned the arts she would later use as a governor's

One long-time North Platte resident said Mrs. Neville was a "charming Southern hostess and the people loved her from the day she came to the Midwest, and they still do."

Except during the governorship, the Nevilles lived together in North Platte their entire married life until Neville's death in 1959.

Mrs. Neville and her four daughters still live in North Platte but leave each winter to visit friends in Florida.

Mrs. Neville says she enjoys recalling her days as a mother and hostess in the old mansion.

She remembers sewing Red Cross dresses for her daughters.

"My little girls entered Red Cross parades and had home-made shows up in the ballroom to raise money for relief,"

Mrs. Neville describes her first tea as almost disastrous

"My first tea was open to the Women's Christian Temperance Union and they told me to prepare for one hundred," she said, "and we had 300 call that afternoon. But we had a wonderful butler, and he just kept going to the phone and ordering more things for the party and we got through fine.'

She also remembers entertaining Theodore Roosevelt before he became President. She called him "our most distinguished visitor."

After Mrs. Neville reared her daughters, she became quite involved with the Democratic party.

In the 1972 general election, she campaigned actively for the Democratic candidate from the 3rd district, Warren Fitzgerald.

She says she is not a political person; her friends describe her as "a devout Democrat and an active one." One friend said she inherited two things from her Southern background - "her gift for friendship and her love for the Democratic party.'

Mrs. Neville said if she could give any advice to today's youth it would be to be a Democrat.

"Why be a Democrat?" she asked.

"Because I'm one and I believe in it."

Farmers seeking a method of using land taken out of discontinued government programs while lining upland to plant wheat on are turning to oats, a crop that can be removed in time to plant wheat later in the "Seed oats demand is way up this year," reports Dick Mills of the University of Nebraska Foundation Seed Division.

The seed division is a selfsupporting portion of the university operation that is not well known to nonfarmers but plays an important role in food supply as well as farmers' seed supply.

All expenses are paid by farmers and seed companies that buy seeds grown from new varieties developed by NU agricultural scientists.

The seed operation has been moving to the University of Nebraska Field Laboratory at Mead in bits and pieces for several years.

Some of the small lots of seed are still hand sorted, particularly when experimental varieties are being developed and the seed has been damaged by unfavorable weather conditions.

'We cleaned the plant at least 185 times last year but it makes it possible to clean very small lots of as little as 15 lbs. of seeds. When we start increasing some of these varieties we may have as little as a half pound to start with," Mills explained.

Spring Wheat Sought

In addition to the sudden interest in oats, which Mills says thinks may last for several years, the division has many requests for spring wheat. "We don't have any and we can't get any. I think this may be a one-time thing because many farmers were unable to get their wheat planted last fall," Mills speculated.

James Waters of Schuyler is one of the division's customers for Otee oat seed.

'We can't let the land lay idle. We intend to follow this with wheat this fall. I think we may be able to get some fertilizer early so it will go on the oats if we do get it," Waters said.

The next move at the foundation seed plant will be the grass seed cleaning equipment, which is still housed at the old plant site, on 70th Street in Lincoln.

The Lincoln building will still be used to store and to sell seed after the grass seed cleaning equipment is moved to Mead.

Seed division personnel are particularly proud of their selfsupporting factor. ("We don't use any of your tax dollars here. We don't make a profit but we do produce seed at cost for farmers, that is what this place is all about," Wilke said.

Joslyn Hit By Director Of Sheldon

Protesting the announcement of the possible sale of works of art from Joslyn Art Museum. Norman A. Geske, director of Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery. has written a letter to E. Stanton Miller, chairman of Joslyn's board of trustees.

Geske called the sale "a declaration of irresponsibility to the general public, to the thousands of students who learn from your collections and to the minority of knowledgeable people and connoisseurs who know and respect the Joslyn Museum for the collection of art it contains.

He said the sale would damage not only Joslyn's reputation, but the state's as well.

It was reported last week that Joslyn would sell part of its permanent collection to raise money for operational costs.

Green Snares Victory

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) -Hubert Green made four birdies in a row at one stretch. For a while, he had a bulging, five-stroke lead. But the key to his victory in the Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament may have been a bogey from a bunker that, at one time, dropped him two strokes off the pace. That was on the fifth hole in Sunday's final round. He'd just made par on the easy, par-five fourth hole-"It was like making a bogey," he said. "I hit a gross shot in there that almost made me sick."-and suddenly the bogey had put him two shots

"I didn't get upset when I made the bogey," said Green.

"I think two years ago I would have. I just told myself, 'There's 13, 14 holes to go. Don't force anything. That's the worst thing you can do. Just keep grinding.

Green, who's rapidly gaining stature as one of the premier young players on the pro tour, did just that. He was rewarded with four birdies in a row, beginning on the seventh hole, a five-stroke lead down the stretch and a comfortable, threestroke triumph.

It was his second title of the year, fourth in the last 12 months, and firmly established him as one of the game's top performers. He joined absent Johnny Miller as the only multiple winner of 1974 and, going back 12 months on the calendar, only Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf have won more.

The slender young man from Birmingham, Ala., collected $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 with his final round of 71 and 276 total, a distant 12 under par on the 7,088-yard Deerwood Country Club Course.

Prep Sports Writer If Omaha Central and Lincoln Pius X basketball fans velled a little louder than most persons on St. Patrick's Day weekend, it's understandable

By RANDY YORK

Compositely, the two Metropolitan-area schools ended a 112-year basketball drought with state championships Satur-

Accordingly, Central earns the No. 1 spot in the Sunday Journal and Star's final Class A ratings and Pius X is awarded No. 1 in the Class B final top 10.

For the Central, the 57-49 state championship win over Lincoln East ended 62 years of basketball frustration. The Eagles hadn't won a state title since 1912, although they finished runnerup nine times in state tourney competition since that time

Pius X, in edging Lexington 44-42 on Artie Aksamit's tipin with three seconds remaining, captured the school's first state basketball title ever, although predecessor Lincoln Cathedral did win a state crown in 1924 - 50 years ago.

"Our kids arose to the occasion," Pius X coach Don Kelley reflected Sunday. "I've said it before, but it's worth repeating. You have to have a little luck to win a state championship.

Kelley, who watched East lose to Central Saturday night on television, related that he was "pulling" for the Spartans to defeat the Eagles.

"You know, our two schools (Pius X and East) are only a stone's throw away from each other," acknowledged Kelley. "It would have been nice for both teams to have won. I don't think that's ever been done before, at least in Lincoln. We've had a number of good will messages from East and they were appreciated."

Kelley added that Saturday night and Sunday was a day for a large number of family relatives to discuss the Thunderbolts' state championship.

'We had relatives from McCook, Sioux City and from here in Lincoln at the house," noted Kelley, "but we've had a lot of phone calls and congratulations from all over.

'There was a lot of tension - even last night," admitted Kelley Sunday afternoon, "but I'm starting to come back down to the point of relaxation. I'm ready for a long, winter nap."

Actually, Pius X's route to the state championship caught at least some teams napping. The Thunderbolts were not one of the four seeded Class B state tourney teams. They defeated fourth-seeded West Point Central Catholic, top-seeded Ord and second-seeded Lexington enroute to the state champ-

"As I look back, Class B was a very evenly balanced race," pointed out Kelley. "Not much separated the top team in Class B down the line as far as about 14 teams.'

According to Kelley, "in the end it was our balance that paid off. (Jim) Hamersky did a little more shooting than he's done for us, but then we saw a lot more zone defenses in the tournament than we'd seen."

Sunday, Kelley and his family attended Mass at St. John's

Catholic Church where three of the Thunderbolt basketball players - Aksamit, Mitch Ohnoutka and Bob McCloskey -

'Then I went out and bought all the newspaper I could buy," related Kelley, a native of Inman, located eight miles

Kelley and his wife Mary have four girls - Kim, 13, Julie, 12, Susan, 9, and Joan, 5, and one boy - Shawn, 11.

Kelley believes district and state tournament pressure is as intense for his wife as it is for him.

"It's very hard on Mary," the Pius X coach says. "She used to spend her time at close games, walking the plank. Last year, when Fairbury beat us in the semifinals, she spent almost the whole fourth quarter walking the halls at Pershing

"If she isn't doing that," adds Kelley, "she spends most of her time at close games, hiding her head behind the program. In the Ord game, I happened to look up straight across the auditorium and saw her with her head behind the program.

"I've told her more than once that it was ridiculous to get to the point where you have to leave the gym when the game is tight," says Kelley. "But she stuck it out all three games this

NEBRASKA COACHES: LARRY ROMJUE

Golf Coaching Techniques Unusual

By RANDY EICKHOFF Star Sports Writer (First Of A Series)

Everybody has their own coaching techniques, but Nebraska golf coach Larry Romjue probably has the most unusual approach - he lets his team members coach themselves.

"Golf is a highly-individual game," Romjue explains. "There isn't much you can do. Either the kid has it or he doesn't.

"Of course," he hastens to add, "there are certain things you can do. Especially with the younger ones who first come out for the team. But by the time they become juniors or seniors there isn't much you can teach them."

while they're freshmen or sophomores and work hard teaching them the finer points of competition.

"You try to work out their swing until it's smoother and repetitive. Then you try to teach them to go with the "safe" shot rather than gamble when they're trailing the field," he says.

"Since it is an indivudual game, when one of your kids gets a stroke or two behind he'll gamble on a shot to try and get those strokes back and that's when he hurts a team," Romjue says.

"Everytime you take a gamble, the odds are against you making it," he continues. "For example, there is a tendency for a golfer to try and cut a dog-leg

The key, Romjue says, is to catch them for the cup or to take a high club and try to muscle the ball when if they take a lower club and play if safe, they'll be in a lot better shape.

> That is part of the Romjue philosophy: mental preparation.

"Sometimes it's better to play the ball short and have an easy chip shot for the green," he says. "But if you're trailing, the tendency would be to take a lower club and try to make the green in one instead of two.

"That's when you lose control," he says. "Anytime you're trying to power your way to the green you lose control of the ball. If you do luck out and make it, you remember that shot and you'll be tempted to try it again. But you'll only make it probably one out of every four times you try it. That leaves you in a deeper hole 75 per cent of the time and adds strokes to your game."

Another reason for Romjue's unusual approach to coaching is the golfer must learn to play on his own. Once he tees off, no coaching is allowed.

"That's a good rule," he says. "If the rule was changed to allow coaching, I still don't think I'd do it. Golf requires a lot of concentration and if I tried to give a golfer a tip I might destroy that concentration and he'll forget his objective.

"It would be nice, though, to be able to tell him what kind of club to use sometimes," he laughs.

Kelley, admitting "I've been neglecting my school work the last couple of weeks," will attend a cluster of luncheons and banquets this week, "try to catch up on my school work and take a week's vacation before jumping into baseball.

East coach Paul Forch not only had to think about Saturday's disappointing loss to Central. He contacted Lincoln police to help find his 9-year-old son, Steve.

Forch was the last person out of the Coliseum. Son Steve had indicated he would ride home with his father.

But he decided instead to catch an earlier car ride home with his mother, Marsha. When they arrived home, they were without a key to get into the house and therefore could not contact Paul about what had transpired.

It was a frustrating end to a disappointing day for Forch. But the 1971 Sunday Journal and Star High School Coach of the Year could take consolation the fact that his teams have qualified for the state title game three times in the last four

And the school is only in its seventh year of existence!

TIME OUT

By Steve Gillispie Star Sports Writer

Past Tournament Recalled

Playing three games in three days during the Nebraska State High School Basketball Tournament may sound strenous, but is easy compared to past tournaments.

A call from 78-year-old Stewart Leese, an all-state player for Lincoln High, told what it used to be like when the Links won their first state title in 1914.

Lincoln High played one game the first day, three the second and two in the third day and won all six games to become the state champion.

There were 64 entries and only one class. The halves were 20 minutes long and there were no timeouts except for injuries.

During the second game, against Holdrege in the morning, the Links prevailed, 17-5 and Leese scored all of Lincoln High's points.

The Links beat Omaha Central, 21-18, in an overtime to win their first state title with captain and center Ed Albrecht making the winning points.

Leese said he believed that he and Albrecht are the only two members still alive on both Lincoln High's and Omaha Central's teams.

Hearing of Leese scoring all 17 points in a win brings memories of a similar incident that happened to current Sunday Journal-Star prep writer Randy York, who was a very good basketball player. York scored all of Alliance's 28 points in a 28-27 win over Gering in a seventh and eighth grade game 10 years ago.

And in both Leese's and York's cases, there wasn't any set plan before or during the game to have just those two score all the points, it just turned out that way.

Better Press Facilities Needed

There is a growing problem that happens during the State High School Basketball Tournament that needs to be remedied or trouble will develop in the future.

The problem stems from the fact that there isn't currently adequate places for the press at Pershing, Johnson and East High's Gyms.

So what happens is that all the radio stations are assigned seats, so are newspapers like this one because they require phones for their work. After those seats are assigned, there aren't enough left over for outstate sports editors and sports writers and they are forced to sit in the stands.

Sitting in the stands isn't the best way to try to cover a sporting event, especially when one needs a place to write. What needs to be done is to make sure there is room for ALL of the sports media and not just ones with

This could be taken care of because application for press passes has to be made ahead of time and seating could be arranged on the basis of how many press passes are issued.

Or sportscasters and sports writers could indicate when they apply for press passes which games they will cover. Hopefully the issue will be resolved before the next tournament or tempers that just flared along with some choice words being exchanged could turn to blows.

Nothing has been mentioned about the press facilities at the Nebraska Coliseum because there is not only enough room, but also royal treatment from the Husker sports information office.

Not only does Don Bryant's crew provide free soft drinks, but also complete statistics at halftime and the game's completion. Neither of services are available at any other sites.

When Nebraska's fieldhouse is completed, one reason it's hoped that all games in the State High School Basketball Tournament will be held there is the special treatment received from Bryant and his help, which makes a hectic job easier.

Darwin had a two-run homer and Braun hit his in the fifth for three runs. It was the Twin's first win in 11 preseason games.

The Twins scored in the first inning when Harmon Killebrew singled in one run, then went on to overcome a 3-1 Houston advantage for the triumph.

In other exhibition games, the Cincinnati Reds blanked the Atlanta Braves 7-0, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3, the Chicago White Sox downed Kansas City 8-5, the New York Yankees drubbed Detroit 5-1, Los Angeles defeated the New York Mets 9-2, the Chicago Cubs topped the Oakland A's 6-2, San Francisco dropped California 8-2, Montreal defeated Texas 5-1, and Cleveland beat

The victory boosted the Kansas City-Omaha record to 30-47 with five games remaining.

The Kings snapped a fourgame victory streak for Houston, which had won 13 of its last 19 starts.

The Kings, leading throughout, used 22 points by Kojis to take a 62-46 halftime advantage. Kojis did not play the last quarter.

The Rockets hit 11 of their first 12 shots in the third quarter and two free throws by Rudy Tomjanovich cut the deficit to 76-71 with six minutes left in that period. But the Kings outshot the Rockets 18-6 the remainder of the quarter.

Tomjanovich and Calvin Murphy led Houston with 25 points each. Nate Williams followed Kojis with 22 points for the Kings

Coach Bep Guidolin said he's working to keep his team sharp despite its solid lead over runnerup Montreal in the East.

For a senator with little or no staff, lobbyists can often supply important information that the senator would not have the time to find otherwise. According to Sen. Fred Car-

According to Carstens, lobbyists write about half of the bills introduced into the legislature. An example would be a bill now pending that would allow villages to establish retirement systems for their employes.

No senator could base a reelection campaign on pensions for village employes, so the idea probably would not have been raised if a lobbyist did not push

The League of Municipalities Johnson Picks wants the bill and they are lobbying for it.

Pushing for a simple bill usually involves talking personally with senators in the hall outside the chamber, over lunch or at some other place.

When the senator and the lobbyist go to lunch, the lobbyist picks up the bill. Most senators say that buying the lunch, in itself, has little effect on them.

Other senators do not take such a passive view. Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said, "I know they give them food and liquor.

OFFICIAL TEST RESULTS:

Six Mazdas proved their good gas mileage recently under a variety of road, traffic and weather conditions. In a United States Auto Club certified test using non-professional drivers, The Mazdas were driven from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C., at an overall average speed of 53.5 mph. The smallest Mazda, a piston-engine 808, deMazdas, three rotary-engine RX-4's, averaged over 20 mpg. Of course, the mileage you get depends on the way you drive. But Mazda's fuel economy has been confirmed by indeper road tests and surveys. In fact Mazda mileage was in the top 25% of all new cars sold last year. For the full story of Maz-da's gas economy, see any of Mazda's dealers nationwide.
